OUR CLASSMATE

JOHNYNE CLARK

who transferred to a much brighter and richer school on August 9, 1936, leaving us poorer by her untimely death. » »

HISTORY

The fall of '33 was bright, and to us it seemed beautiful for we had just started our career in B. T. H. S. This brightness was dimmed as unwelcome showers were poured upon us by our superiors. We soon impressed them, however, with our importance, when we crowned Jean Vaught, queen of the school, and started a precedent which has been followed ever since. At last, after nine months, seemingly long and yet so short, we realized that we had completed one of our five years.

In the beginning of our second year, as Freshmen, we realized that it was our turn "to duck" some of the others much to our joy and satisfaction. We still wonder what Mr. Ladd meant when he talked to us in Latin, but we soon learned about his "tea parties" that lasted from one to three hours. During the entire month of December the school was decorated with ladders, paint brushes, buckets, and scaffolding. The highlight of the year was the fire. Picture, if you can, our mad rush from the third floor after we had mistaken the fire bell for the regular class bell.

After three long, peaceful months we found ourselves back again, this time as Sophomores. We went to work in earnest as we realized that we had three more years ahead of us.

As Juniors we started out, to prove our importance to everybody, including ourselves. As a beginning, Thomas Ingram, "our tallest lad," was elected President of the All Students' Council. To make this year memorable, several new members, among which are Peggy O'Dell, Frances Henderson, Hazel Wolfe, Raymond Fletcher, Tommy Johnston, Charles Oakley, and Perry Newman, were added to our number. In recognition of our outstanding ability the Juniors were allowed to give a Junior Play. After much debate a mysterious comedy, "Murdered Alive," was chosen and under the excellent supervision of Mr. Burns, we surprised ourselves and everybody else with our acting.

The fall of '36 arrived. At last we had reached our goal—we are Seniors —the largest class in the history of our school. The fall term we were fortunate to have Graham Vance, as President of the Senior Class and Ben Sims as President of the All Students' Council. Our football season will always be remembered. The new stadium was dedicated at the Johnson City game. At this time we celebrated by selling our first printed programs. The highlight of the football season, however, was the winning of the Virginia-Tennessee game for which much credit should be given to Captain "Chess" and his team.

We start the second term, gladly and yet reluctantly. We wonder what will be our fate without the help of our teachers, the comradeship of our fellow students, and the beloved walls of Tennessee High.

CLASS WILL

We, the class of nineteen hundred and thirty-seven of Tennessee High School, town of Bristol, county of Sullivan, realizing our present dignity and importance as Seniors of this most worthy institution, and realizing that our high school days are ending, do hereby declare this, our last will and testament.

FIRST, we leave the faculty, who with loving devotion have guided us for the last five years, our kindest wishes for the future.

SECOND, we bequeath to the Junior Class members all the Senior dignities and those "supposed" Senior privileges.

THIRD, we bequeath to our beloved sponsors, Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, Miss Owen, and Mr. Gillingham, our sincerest gratitude and hope they will have less trouble with the Seniors of "38.

Our remaining personal bequests are as follows:

We, Sonny Adams, Nell Dougherty, and Jimmy King, not knowing which of our charming personalities to part with, but wishing to have likenesses in the Junior Class, do hereby will and bequeath our perpetual grins to Milton Abercrombie, Caroline Riddle, and Billy Hagy.

I, Ben Sims, do hereby will and bequeath my numerous offices and my dignity to anyone who is capable of holding them.

We, Vernon Hobbs, Victor Johnson, and Lloyd Smith, do hereby will and bequeath our quiet manners to Helen Frances Stover, Munsey Slack, De Cole, and Benny Cowan, hoping the halls will be much quieter.

We, Jenina Furse, Wallace Carrier, and Ray Fletcher, will our memories to Frances Pair and Mose Helton, hoping they won't forget to use them.

We, Elizabeth Henninger and Helen Hunt, bequeath to Irvin Talbert one small notebook in which to write jokes, so he won't tell the same one twice.

I, Sarah Watkins, bequeath my vamping ability to June O'Dell.

We, Florine Bibee and Helen Shuler, do hereby will and bequeath our charming dimples to Agnes Bachman and Marilyn Spinks, trusting they will improve their looks more than ours.

I, Mary Ann Morison, bequeath my gracious personality to Edith McCroskey, on the condition that she learns to squeal as only I can.

We, "Tubby" Stone and "Dotty" Powers, bequeath our art of applying lipstick to Ruth Bachman and Evelyn Hagy, hoping it will have better results.

We, Fred King, George McIntyre, and Austin Combs, bequeath our ability to make feminine hearts flutter to James Moore, J. C. Phipps, and Robert Kelly.

We, Margaret Martin, Doris Lane, Ardis Moore, and Grace Rhea, bequeath our sweet dispositions to Margaret Arrants, Louise Mann, Ruth Steppe, and Lois Trammel.

We, Tommy Ingram and Graham Vance, bequeath our positions as school sheiks to Harry Phipps and Julian Sisler.

We, Mary Baird, Elizabeth Thomas, Peggy O'Dell, and Helen Harr, bequeath our quietness to all those who feel inclined to talk in study hall.

I, Charles Oakley, bequeath to James Lee one box of chalk to be used in target practice, hoping he will be as successful as I.

We, Edward Counts, C. C. Mercer, Charles Stansberry, and Allen Swiney, being extremely shy, bequeath our ability to blush to Robert Rader, A. C. Vires, Henry Smith, and William Phelps.

I, Emma Kate Vance, will my way with the men, especially with members of the faculty, to Dorothy Sayles.

We, Mary Lynn Cross, Lorraine Kyle, and Edith Lambert, bequeath our "King" dates to Thelma Blevins, Virginia Kaylor, and Hazel Whitaker.

I, Henry Wood, bequeath my seat in assembly to Jimmy Hawkins, so he too can boo speakers without being caught.

We, Winifred Blevins, Billy Fleenor, and Perry Newman, knowing that silence is golden, bequeath some of our abundant share to Leon Carrier, Kenneth Messerole, and Wade Foster.

We, George Wyman and James Wolford, bequeath our seats in French class to James Newton and W. C. Hardin, hoping their dreams won't be disturbed.

CLASS WILL (Continued)

I, Tommy Johnston, having an unusually good scientific attitude, bequeath to Miss Smith a robot to compensate for my loss.

We, Mae Booher, Imogene Hickam, and Margaret Odum, bequeath our sense of humor to Pauline Kensinger, Vivian McCary, and Virginia Richards.

I, Frances Williams, bequeath to Emma Sue Thomas, one cake of Palmolive to help keep her school girl complexion.

I, Bill Dix, loving only one "Juliet", bequeath some fidelity to Robert Wallace.

We, Ruth McNew, Janice Kensinger, and Jack Sparger, bequeath our positions as the "reds" of the Senior class to Thelma Blevins and Marie Brown.

I, Hamp Richardson, bequeath a small amount of my orchestra leading technique to George Brown.

I, Charlotte Senter, bequeath my unpublicized romance with a certain faculty member to any pretty Junior, as he never fails to fall for some Senior.

We, Ernest Ford and J. C. Hicks, having quite a bit of extra poundage, bequeath part of it to those Juniors who have need of it.

I, Frances Henderson, possessing many of Mae West's characteristics, bequeath to Lois Sawyer my ability to say "come up and see me sometime".

We, Maxie Poe, Irene Darter, and Evelyn Russel, leave to the school one mirror to be used in the locker room, feeling we have worn several out.

I, M. R. Shoaf, bequeath my surplus lethargy to Charles Coffey.

We, Edythe Morris and Carol Woolsey, being famed for our ability to giggle a lot about nothing, bequeath this to Billy Jean Smith and Rebecca Ramsey.

We, Elton Dutton and Lucille Swiney, bequeath our readiness to serve to Alma Godsey and Rowe Driver.

We, Christine Fleenor and Virginia Kaylor, bequeath our ability to make witty remarks to Mildred Glover and Katherine Fogarty.

I, Kenneth Weaver, bequeath my distinctly different laugh to James Neel.

I, Mildred Peltier, bequeath my melodious voice to La Verne Riddle, so she too may become a famous opera singer.

I, Gay Owen, bequeath my ability to skip classes to Eileen Stone.

We, Edith Rutherford and Edna Wolfe, bequeath our smiles, which have won us many friends, to Sue Rogers.

I, Cecil McClister, famed for unluckiness, bequeath it to Alfred Faivre.

We, Eleanor Lowry and Elizabeth McCorkle, bequeath our position as smallest girls in the Senior class to Mildred Miller and Marguerite Hensley.

I, Louis Harkins, bequeath my caveman appearance and my ability to win sympathy from the females to Gerald Clark.

I, Katherine Thomas, being possessed with super-intelligence, bequeath it to anyone who is in need of it.

I, Chess Lowry, bequeath my position as teacher's pet to Henry Snodgrass.

We, Dorothy Blackley and Hazel Wolfe, bequeath our unusual styles of hairdress to Gladys Berkley and Julia Clayman.

I, Elizabeth Shinn, bequeath my alarm clock to Dorothy Counts, so she won't be late as often as I.

I, Clifford Kesner, bequeath my musical ability to Clarence Fulwider.

I, Evelyn Barron, bequeath my timidness to any girl, who can scream like she means it, when she sees a mouse.

We, Claude Fine, T. L. Hagler, and Billy Young, bequeath our business-like appearance to James Cawood, Walter Buckles, and Morgan Loving.

We, Engene Baker, Edmond Doriot, and Bill Furlow, bequeath our desire to seek knowledge to Douglas Boy, Fred Carrier, and Brandon Hagy, hoping they will prove more successful than we.

I, Katherine Ashley, bequeath my position as legator of the Senior class to anyone who is interested.

CLASS PROPHECY

As I walked down the street recently, I met an old friend of mine, Mr. Segar. After discussing various topics, we began talking about his famous comic strip, Sappo. He told me, however, that the joke on the American people was that there really existed such a person as Wotasnozzle and that he had invented a long-distance viewing screen. My friend was kind enough to lead me to this marvelous invention. I looked toward the screen and saw Ed Doriot trying to hammer college math into the dumb heads of a group of University freshmen. —Katherine Thomas flying over the Atlantic as air hostess.—Billy Fleenor installing an air conditioned furnace in the home of Bill Dix and Christine Fleenor.—Mary Lynn Cross advertising a new brand of chewing gum.—George McIntyre trying to bribe a little girl into letting him pull that old mean "toofie woofie".—Allen Swiney selling Swiney's reducing compound, guaranteed results.—Mary Ann Morison buying some woolen material—"Ba! Ba!".—Hamp Richardson leading an orchestra in the Cocoanut Grove in Hollywood.—Fred King making a speech to the women-haters of America.—Ben Sims obediently taking home the "turtle" Charlotte told him to bring for dinner.—Clifford Kesner taking a census of the unemployed men in the United States.—Edythe Morris showing the latest models from gay Paree.—M. R. Shoaf lazily enjoying the sandy beach on a Florida coast.—Dorothy Blackley giving a free demonstration of new hair styles from Hollywood.—Lucille Swiney happily hanging Paul Junior's clothes on a clothesline.—James Wolford trying to get in on some sort of "get rich quick" scheme.—Florine Bibee buying a new brand of hair straightener.—Jimmy King traveling in Europe.—Hazel Wolfe cornering a Beaver.—Ed Count's picture on a sign reading, "I can make a Charles Atlas of you in ten days—see what my treatment has done for Mr. Counts."—Doctor Ray Fletcher.—Charles Oakley receiving a cup as tennis champion of the United States.—Ardis Moore very gently holding the hand of a young gentleman patient in Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore.—Graham Vance avowing his love to one of the V. I. instructors who was a student in 1937.—Christine Holloway swimming in the Olympic meet since Eleanor Holm Jarrett is too old.—Edith Lambert doing an impersonation of Mae West in a local theatre.—Tom Ingram indorsing "Wheaties for that sunny disposition" of basket-ball champions.—Emma Kate Vance knocking on her Wood.—Katherine Ashley feverishly arguing a suit in court and blushing twenty times a minute.—A sign, "Collins and Company"—owned by Helen Hunt.—Gay Owen arguing with the iceman. —Cecil McClister topping a chocolate soda with a huge cherry.—Carol Woolsey following the Virginia High Basket-ball team since she is interested in the new coach.—Virginia Kaylor baking a cake in the Home Economics Department of Tennessee High—she's trying to gain weight.—Eugene Baker trying to win a Legg.—Jenina Furse laughing (Harr! Harr! Clifton).—Ernest Ford trying to solve the problem of a Riddle.—Chess Lowry coaching the University of California football team.—Austin Combs inquiring how much it costs to have one's bust put into the Hall of Fame.—Sarah Watkins singing in the Metropolitan opera.—Mary Baird and Bill Furlow dancing in a nightclub.—Claude Fine and T. L. Hagler selling vacuum cleaners to the housewives of America.—Ruth McNew trying to dye her hair a brighter shade of red.—George Wyman examining a precious Stone.—Sonny Adams trucking his way to fame on the stage.

—Louis Harkins trying to sell two much-used crutches.—Elizabeth Henninger and Tommy Johnston as Hollywood's favorite romantic team.—Evelyn Barron playing the piano in a famous orchestra.—Perry Newman building a house—trying to see if his woodworking did him any good.—Dotty Powers enviously looking at a plate of food—she was on a diet.—Nell Dougherty showing the members of a girls' club how to roll one's eyes to get the best results.—Kenneth Weaver engaged in his acrobatic stunts with the Ringling-Weaver Circus.—May Booher baking a strawberry shortcake for her fine husband.—Eleanor Lowry and Margaret Martin walking into a department store which specialized in tiny women's clothes.—Elizabeth Thomas giving a permanent wave to one of the male sex.—Peggy O'Dell sitting in her stateroom on a huge ocean liner.—Lorraine Kyle cleaning her little home in Japan.—Elton Dutton pulling his hair because Wotasnozzle invented a certain machine before he did.—Billy Young talking to a fan who thought he was just too handsome.—Vernon Hobbs, owner of the Parisian Beauty Salon, demonstrating to a group of women what Hobbs refined peroxide could do in the way of platinum locks—in another department, J C. Hicks' head protruding from a Turkish bath.—Maxie Poe reigning supremely as the queen of a certain young King.—Frances Henderson in a dainty pink apron over a washtub going Rub a "Dub, Dub".—Ivan Godsey receiving recognition from a governor of the state for one of his fine paintings.—Charles Stansberry receiving instructions for his first solo flight.—Edna Wolfe sketching a design of the newest dress sensation.—Grace Rhea having a recitation from each one of her history pupils in the new high school.—Winford Blevins descending from his trailer to do his morning exercises in the great open spaces.—Clarence Mercer sharing his brilliant historical mind with a group of world statesmen.—Helen Harr and Victor Johnson in a big new car riding toward the preacher's house.—Edith Rutherford in a public library searching for rules on law suits for a transfer corporation.—Evelyn Russell corresponding with a male friend who was a student af Carson-Newman College in 1937.—Elizabeth Shinn in Jonesboro attending a banquet in her honor as the wife of the mayor.—Janice Kensinger making a pep talk to the women coaches of America.—Helen Shuler swimming the English channel.—Elizabeth McCorkle darning husband, W. B. Faust's, socks.—Imogene Hickam having her hair set to go to a party.—Margaret Odum buying three bottles of milk from Gray's Dairy when she only needs two; what sales talk that man has.—Lloyd Smith quietly selling confections to the busy crowds of Chicago.—Jack Sparger grinning as he accepted the Nobel prize for his scientific research and attitude.—Doris Lane typing one of the many letters which it is her duty to do as secretary to the president.—Irene Darter living in Washington since her W. P. A. worker has been promoted.—Wallace Carrier and Mildred Peltier singing in one of the largest cathedrals in New York—and last but not least, Frances Williams sponsoring publications and dramatics in the new Tennessee High School.

As the last member of the graduating class of 1937 passed from view, the screen became an inanimate object and ceased to hold further attraction. But the revelation of this machine recalled for me the many days of happiness spent in the halls of our dear old Tennessee.

CLASS POEM

DEPARTED

Low the fire, and soft its glow
Shines on our band upon the shore,
And sad our hearts, for well we know
That we united sail no more.
The Viking ship that bore us there,
Rests now at anchor in the bay.
Upon her decks where friendships grew
Now only lazy shadows play.
As fades the fire, our voices fade,
And quietly the night comes o'er
This band of Vikings, and the voyage made,
Each goes his way; deserted is the shore.

—Gay Owen.

The ancient bard in times of old
Sang to his muse on harp of gold,
But we with feelings less sublime
Ask favor in this modern rhyme.

We do not bow our heads in shame
But pledge our efforts, live or die,
To make a better Tennessee High.

HIGHLIGHTS IN INTRAMURAL CIRCLES

As time marches on and we turn the pages of memory, we find another successful year of Intramural sports at Tennessee High coming to an end. Under the efficient leadership of Miss Lucille Wyman the girls entered into athletic activities with a will. Helen Hunt was chosen as Manager and Elizabeth Henninger as Assistant Manager. The Manager and Assistant met with Coach Wyman and selected an able staff of leaders. They were as follows: Carmen Lilley, "Tubby" Stone, Ada Lynn Hawkins, Marjorie Willard, Betsy Ferguson, Christine Holloway, Marie Brown, Ruth Crawford, Janice Kensinger, Carolyn Riddle, and Katherine Fogarty.

Things began to hum when Carmen Lilly issued a call for kickball aspirants. The teams met and selected captains and managers, who were as follows: Senior-Junior, Elizabeth Henninger and Eileen Stone; Sophomore, Frances Quillen and Doris Keesling; Frosh., Marjorie Willard and June Gray; 8b's, M. F. Thompson and Evelyn McClellan; 8a's, Mildred McCary and Ellen Whitaker. The Junior-Senior team tied with the 8b's for first place but bad weather prevented the playoff.

Next on the schedule came volley-ball, for which the girls turned out by dozens. "Tubby" Stone organized the teams and an exciting tournament was held. The Seniors won the volley-ball of 1936 over strong competition.

Then came the best-liked sport of all—basket-ball. Nets swished, whistles blew, muscles stiffened. Helen Shuler, manager of basket-ball, called for an organization of teams. Helen Hunt and Elizabeth Henninger were elected to lead the Senior team, A. L. Hawkins and Eileen Stone were chosen by the Juniors, and the Sophomores chose Ruth Crawford and Dorothy Baker. The Junior-Senior game held most attention. The Juniors flashed a classy defense that held the Seniors except Hunt, almost scoreless. The Seniors grabbed an early lead but the Juniors led at the final whistle, 10-9.

Here's hoping that the Intramural system will enjoy success again next year!

A QUESTION!

Why is the cost at Virginia Intermont College less than that of other Schools and colleges advertised in the National Magazines?

THE ANSWER!

1. Virginia Intermont College has no debt and no interest to pay on a mortgage. It has not had a cent of debt in twenty years.
2. Virginia Intermont College is not privately owned nor a stock company, and has no dividends to declare or taxes to pay.
3. Virginia Intermont College has endowment, the income from which is used for improvement and overhead expenses.
4. The school is constantly receiving gifts from people who are interested in the kind of training Virginia Intermont College girls receive.
5. Virginia Intermont College does not "cut" its rates under the guise of "scholarships," which are simple reductions to secure patronage.
6. Most of the supplies for the college tables come from the school's dairy and farm of over a thousand acres.
7. Virginia Intermont College fills to capacity every year without an expensive outlay for advertising and field representation.
8. Virginia Intermont College has had good business management for many years, and its finances have been kept in sound condition. There has never been a year when the auditor's report showed a deficit.

The catalog gives full information as to courses and total cost for board, room, literary tuition, and fees, ranging from $460 to $560. For particulars, write to

KING COLLEGE

Founded 1867

A Standard Four-Year College for Men and Women

BRISTOL, TENNESSEE-VIRGINIA

WHY SHOULD BRISTOL HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES ATTEND KING COLLEGE?

First: Because of its excellent faculty; finely trained Christian men and women, who excel as teachers, and who furnish the best guarantee of a real education; whose lives and influence count in character-building for the student.

Second: Because of its reasonable costs. Day students may attend King for around $150 a year including all fees and books. Compare these figures with costs elsewhere.

Third: Because its splendidly balanced program of extra-curricular activities, including athletics, debates, glee clubs, etc., insures a well-rounded development for every student.

King College is a Christian college: A good place for a boy or girl.

For Catalog, address DR. THOMAS P. JOHNSTON, President.

SULLINS COLLEGE

is fully accredited and offers a SCHOLARSHIP to every girl who graduates in the Bristol High Schools.

The advantages in Music, Art, Expression, Dramatics, Home Economics and Secretarial Course are in keeping with the high Literary standards.
